CATARACT SURGERY - NEW OPTIONS!

The Choice is Now Yours

With advancements in cataract surgery, there are now many options available to renew your vision with different lens implant technologies. Today's cataract surgery has the potential to not only eliminate cataracts but allows you to see near, far and everything in between!

1. Standard IOL – Single focus or monofocal intra ocular lenses (IOLs) when implanted can provide good distance or near vision with less dependence on glasses. You may still need glasses for some tasks. This option does not correct astigmatism.

2. Toric IOL – These are single focus IOLs that are designed to eliminate cataracts and astigmatism at the same time. They are designed to provide good distance or near vision. Many patients with astigmatism feel that their vision is the best they have ever experienced.

3. Multifocal IOL – These advanced lenses are designed to correct close, intermediate and distance vision to reduce your need for glasses for both distance and near.

Which lens is right for you depends on your circumstances – your work, your hobbies, your visual needs and your eyes. Dr. Jenkins and her staff after assessing your eyes and listening to your story will help you decide which option is the best for you. Please visit our website at jenkinseyecare.com for more information about your choices or call us at 808-591-9911 for a cataract consultation.

ASK OUR DOCTORS

Why are my eyes itchy and red?

In most cases red and itchy eyes without mucous discharge indicate an allergic reaction to something. It could be a particular flower blooming or the ever present VOG in Hawaii. Other times it could be a new cream or eye makeup you might be using. If you figure out the cause of the allergy, easiest thing is removing it from your environment, but that is not always possible.

If the redness and itching is fairly mild and temporary, first try topical lubricants or artificial tears to rinse out the offending allergens. If symptoms are chronic, prescription allergy eye drops like Pataday or the new Lastacaft can be very helpful to reduce and even prevent the development of these irritating symptoms when used once daily. Some patients who are already managed well with prescription allergic topical eye drops may still experience occasional flare-ups where the redness and itching is more intense than usual. This may call for temporary use of topical steroids to alleviate their discomfort. Please see your eye doctor to find out what the best course of treatment is or call us at (808) 591-9911.
